What is the fund for:

The bursaries help sustain dancers, performing arts, choreographers, researchers and scholars in the arts and creative industries. There are four categories under which people in arts and creative industries can apply:

1) Dance & Performing Arts:

Formal education: this strand is for applicants who have been accepted into an arts and creative industries education programme and are seeking financial support.

Informal education: applicants to this strand will have to show a clear plan of activity that demonstrates how they will be gaining knowledge in their chosen activity.

2) Academic researchers in arts and creative industries: Research can be multimodal. Assistance with financing areas of the research that may include data collection, books, publishing, research training, equipment, and conferences.

3) Choreographic artists looking to develop their own work for an audience that takes place in a theatre, festival, or community setting. This can include artists who are looking for support to develop and produce their own solo work. This is geared towards freelance choreographers.

4) Mental health and physical well-being support: Cover from the fund includes:

Support with face-to-face therapy sessions with professional therapists across the UK or USA. Rehabilitation costs (following injury) are supported by this Fund. Examples of this might be the cost of some physiotherapy sessions.

Consulting a medical practitioner with dance specialist knowledge working in a dance injury clinic or similar establishment for medical advice. This advice would support the performer to return to peak health and fitness that allows them to continue performing, rehearsing or training.
